ELEMENTS OF A STORY

- 1. Characters persons, animals, or imaginary creatures in a story.
- Characterization the author's way of explaining the characters. It reveals personalities and motives.

Ways that characterization is revealed: directly and indirectly

- The writer tells us directly.
- Physical description
- The writer tells what the characters do. [SEP]
- The writer tells what the characters say, think, and feel. [1]
- The writer tells what the characters think about each other.

2. Kinds of Characters:

- Protagonist the main character of the story, this person drives the plot forward and is usually a "hero," but isn't always.
- Antagonist Usually the opposite of the protagonist. He or she is not always a "villain," but usually creates obstacles that stop the main character from reaching a goal.
- Flat character- has one or two defining character traits
- Round character- more complex characters with many traits
- Dynamic character undergoes an internal change throughout the story (this is not a physical change) usually learns a life lesson or changes as a person—either good or bad
- Static character does NOT undergo any significant character or personality changes throughout the story
- 3. Setting when and where- a story must have both [step](time + place = setting)
- 4. Plot a series of related events that happen in a story
  - Exposition –introduces characters, setting, and background information
  - Rising Action Events occur that make the conflict more complicated and lead to the [step]climax.
    - o Conflict** the problem that the main character is facing [SEP]
    - o Complications Problems that arise as the character is trying to solve the problem

- Climax The turning point of a story—the conflict is at its worst, the character(s) may come face to face with the conflict and are trying to solve it.
- Falling Action Tension eases, the problem begins to be solved.
- Resolution The problem is solved or determined unsolvable. The story usually ends here. [17]
- ** Conflict problem that is happening to the protagonist (main character). There is both internal and external conflict.

External Conflict

- Character vs. Character One character has a problem with one or more characters in a story.
- Character vs. Nature A character has a problem with some natural happening.
- Character vs. Society Character has a problem with society (school, tradition, law, government, racism, etc).

Internal Conflict

Character vs. Self - Character struggles with himself and has difficulty making a personal decision.

- 5. Point of View perspective from which the story is told
  - First Person "I" story—the narrator is a character in the story.
  - Third Person- Someone outside the story is telling the story. The narrator is NOT a specific character in the story. (uses he, she, it, they, them pronouns)
    - Omniscient—narrator is all-knowing, knows every characters thoughts and feelings
    - Limited—narrator knows thoughts and feelings of one character
    - Objective—narrator doesn't know any character thoughts or feelings
- 6. Theme- The theme is the big idea or message that the story tells about life. It is usually NOT stated directly. There can be more than one theme.
  - Example of a theme statement: Only you have the ability to overcome your obstacles- believe in yourself.
